Geneva Parley Is Told Russian Reactor Is Now Competitive in Areas Remote From Good Coal.

By FRANK CAREY

GENEVA, Aug. 9 (AP) - An American scientist told the atoms-for-peace conference today "there is a good possibility" atomic power will be competing with electricity from coal in the United States within the next 15 or 20 years.

The prediction was made to the 72-nation scientific congress by Dr. James A. Lane of the Atomic Energy Commission's Atomic Energy Commission's Oak Ridge (Tenn.) National Lab-said today he has asked members of West Germany's Christian Democratic party (CDU) to stay out of the Saar plebiscite campaign.

Von Brentano told the West European Union's Electoral Commission he has made this request to CDU leaders and to members of the party's parliamentary delegation. He made no reference to any similar requests to other West German political parties. CDU is the main party in Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's coalition government.

Von Brentano was replying to a letter from the WEU commission warning that participation of West German politicians in the plebiscite would create difficulties. The commission will conduct the voting Oct. 23 to determine how Saarlanders feel about a French-German plan to "Europeanize" the Saar.

CITIZENS' GROUP ASKS NOV. 8 VOTE ON $55,200,000 IN COUNTY BONDS

A St. Louis county bond issue totaling $55,200,000 to be submitted to voters at a special election Nov. 8 was recommended last night by the St. Louis County Citizens Bond Issue Screening Committee.

The amount would be within $829,363 of the limit of bonded indebtedness the county may incur this year.

The committee's report, which recommends a $33,500,000 expressway and highway program and a $10,600,000 county buildings proposal, will be submitted to the County Council tomorrow.

Roll

Schechter.

Cites Opinion on Expenses.

Schechter said he had obtained a legal opinion to the effect that if any county items appeared on the Oct. 4 ballot the county would have to bear the entire expense of the election. If the only items are state matters, the state pays the cost, he was told.

In view of the fact the county is going to have to meet the full cost of any bond issue election, he said, it was his suggestion that the election be deferred until Nov. 8 to permit more time for campaigning and for raising campaign funds. There was no opposition in the committee to the Nov. 8 date.

The highway and expressway proposal was outlined in four propositions: $8,500,000 for the county's share of rights-of-way costs for the Mark Twain, Daniel Boone and Ozark expressway and for an outerbelt expressway and for an outerbelt expressway and for an outerbelt expressway; $9,000,000 for right-in the controversial Daniel Boone expressway: $9,000,000 for right-in the Clayton committee fears the controversial Daniel Boone corruction.

A second proposition would be for a new police department building farther south and for landscaping. These would cost 22,753,000.

A proposal for acquiring a secondary airport for $1,300,000 was recommended but no particular site was named, thus leaving officials free to select a site if the voters approve the proposition.

The Clayton committee's resolution also called for designation of routes in the expressway insurance against any change in the routes after the election. Executive Council Lists Merger With CIO.

By SPENCER R. McCULLOCH A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Aug. 9—A campaign of intensive political action prior to the 1956 national election has been decided on by the American Federation of Labor as a major objective of the 15,000,000-member united labor organization scheduled to be completed through merger with the CIO next December.

This policy was advanced yesterday at opening of a three-day meeting of the AFL executive council, prior to a general con-terday at opening of a three-daymeeting of the AFL executive council, prior to a general conference of heads of AFL unions to discuss merger plans, preparatory to the December conventions of both bodies.

"Only by a far more intensive campaign of political education and organization can labor hope to swins the balance of power to the side of progress and social justice," the council stated. "This must be one of the major objectives of the united labor movement in 1956."

The political policy statement declared that the first session of the Eighty-fourth Congress had adjourned with its "job only haif completed."

The council said that "in all fairness Congress should be given due credit for the constructive legislation it enacted" but declared its record was open to criticism for failures of omission.

The council criticized Congress for failing to provide "an effective program of federal aid to education" and for not enacting "corrective" amendments to the Taft-Hartley Act. Failure to adopt proposals for moderate income tax reductions for those in low income brackets also was censured.

"Congress took no final action

"It took inadequate action on public housing, authorizing only 45,000 units in the coming year. This was a weak compromise between the Senate-approved bill for 135,000 units a year for four years and the House bill providing for no public housing at all. "It got locked in controversy over financing plans and failed to approve any road building program, although opinion was virtually unanimous on the need for it."

Credit was given Congress by the executive council for its record dealing with foreign policy and raising of the minimum wage figure from 75 cents an hour to $1. It was commended also for approving pay increases for postal and other government workers.

Turning to state legislation, the council said that the overall legislative record was so "spotty" as to indicate that labor is more vulnerable to political attacks on the state level than on the national front.

Joseph D. Keenan, secretary treasurer of the Electrical Workers, was elected to the 15-mem-

DIES OF WOUNDS SUFFERED WHILE TELEPHONING WIFE

William Files, 721 North Thirty-first street, East St. Louis, died yesterday at St. Mary's Hospital, East St. Louis, of a gunshot wound of the abdomen suffered July 28 when a .22 caliber rifle he held was discharged as he talked on the telephone to his estranged wife. The 17-year-old youth told police at the time of the shooting that the rifle discharged accidentally during the course of the conversation in which he asked his wife, Shirley, 16 years old, to return to him. Mrs. Files, who told police she agreed to return, said she heard a shot and cries over the telephone and called police.

Great motor-car traditions were written by Studebaker and Packard, as side-by-side they came down the nation's highways: Studebaker, symbol of fine craftsmanship; Packard, symbol of inspired engineering.

Today, these two proud traditions are united in a great new company, and America's proudest automotive tradition burns bright again — with a great line of cars in every price class... cars to fit every taste and budget ... cars that are first with the exciting new ideas that add so much to your motoring pleasure.

Behind all of the wonderful new cars and trucks rolling off the lines at Studebaker-Packard Corporation stands the strength of a new company... with new men, new facilities, new vision.

The new program at Studebaker-Packard Corporation has brought together a group of dynamic new men — men rich in automotive experience who see here an opportunity like no other in the auto industry today —men known for their drive and vision and ideas. Stylists, engineers, and designers — these are the men who are making the big difference in your motoring future.

Back of these men are vast manufacturing facilities and resources. For the combined facilities of Studebaker and Packard have made this new company one of America's great industrial enterprises. In fact, the July issue of Fortune magazine lists Studebaker-Packard Corporation in the top third of America's 500 largest companies. That's big enough to compete with anybody, anytime, anywhere!

HO HO SH

Right now, this dynamic new motor-car producer is recapturing its rightful position in the American market place with increased production and sales. But more important to you, the American motorist, is this solemn pledge: No matter how many cars we build, there will be no compromise with our traditions of craftsmanship and engineering. Our Pride of Workmanship is your assurance that the best-built cars on the road will keep coming your way from Studebaker-Packard Corporation.

We honestly believe that a demonstration ride in a new Packard, Clipper, or Studebaker will be mighty exciting proof that a great American tradition burns bright once again — to bring better motoring to you and your family.

19-YEAR OFFICIAL SERVICE OUSTED

Dr. Frank S. Horne, Democrat, Says He Will Contest Firing by Housing Agency.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9 (AP) -Dr. Frank S. Horne says he will contest his ouster, after 19 years in Government service, as an adviser on minority problems in the Housing and Home Finance Agency.

Horne, a Negro, did not attribute his firing to any policy differences. Asked whether he had had a policy disagreement with Housing Administrator Albert M. Cole, he replied, "I can't say there has been a parting of the ways for that reason."

"I have a notice effective Aug. 25 and the reason given is budgetary action," Horne told reporters. "There ain't no such animal."

His job pays $12,685 yearly, Horne, a Negro, did not at-

His job pays $12,685 yearly, counting the recent pay increase voted Government workers. He said he had filed an appeal contending the prospective dismissal is invalid because of his civil convice status and appeal contending the prospective dismissal is invalid because of his civil service status and I additional employment preference as a veteran.

Horne has been with the housing agency for 17 years. A Democrat, he was ousted from a similar adviser's post two years ago and replaced by Joseph R. Ray Sr. of Louisville, Ky., after the job had been designated as one which, could be filled by political appointment. Horne said his present job has civil service protection.

"I can only decide this is a continuation of that action two years ago," he said.

Representative Hays (Dem.), Ohio, said Ray's firing was a "bare-faced violation" of civil service regulations and should be investigated.

Horne said his assistant, Mrs. Corrine Morrow, also has been told her job will end Aug. 25 to permit a reduction in the agency's payroll.

first birthday tomorrow with the dedication of his boyhood home as a national shrine.

He will speak at the home of his late uncle, Dr. Henry J. Minthorn, a country physician in this community 25 miles southwest of Portland. The home has been restored to its condition of 1884 when Hoover lived there. The work was done by the Herbert Hoover Foundation, headed by an Oregon historian, Dr. Burt Brown Barker.

Secretary of the Interior Douglas McKay, whose home is in nearby Salem, will introduce Hoover. A committee of Oregon legislators will be on hand to welcome the former President, who will arrive by plane in Salem tomorrow morning.

The talk will be rebroadcast over a nationwide CBS hookup at 9:30 p.m. St. Louis time.

Americans Warn Glowing Claims Of Atomic Plenty in Near Future Are Unrealistic and Dangerous

Problems of Harnessing Hydrogen Energy Are Unbelievably Complex, Say Scientists Most Familiar With Research in Fusion Process.

> By MARQUIS W. CHILDS A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

GENEVA, Aug. 9.

O GREAT is the potential of the atom that the tendency seen in this United Nations conference on its process. in this United Nations conference on its peacetime uses is to advertise the pushbutton millenium for day after tomorrow. There is a rough division between the optimists who tend to soar off into the wild blue future and the skeptics who want to know how the theoretical and potential are to be translated into the now and the actual.

This has been strikingly illustrated in the undercurrent of rumors that nuclear fusion—in popular understanding, the hydrogen bomb—can in a relatively short time be harnessed for peacetime uses as atomic fission is being harnessed in reactors to produce electrical the most complex and abstruse the most complex and abstruse the most complex and abstruse mature. But it is the language of the most complex and abstruse mature. But it is the language of the most complex and abstruse mature.

The question was brought into the foreground by Homi J. Bhabha, president of the conference and director of India's atomic research project. Bhabha in his inaugural address said that the explosive forces of the hydrogen bomb, producing temperatures equivalent to those in the interior of the up would be hopes raised too high. the interior of the sun, would be controlled for the service of mankind in 20 years. Then, he said, the energy problems of the world will be solved forever. He May Advance Date.

According to those close to the Indian scientist, he is prepared to advance the date of this millenium from 1975 to 1960 and he may even say publicly before the end of the conference that fusion can be harnessed in five years.

The Bhabha statement set off a chain reaction of speculation

The Bhabha statement set off a chain reaction of speculation that should make Henry Wallace blush with shame for his modest vision of a few years back of a quart of milk for every Hottentot. In this latter day vision a pop-up toaster would be attached to every tree in the jungle and milk would spring from every rock. from every rock.

Those in the American deleation familiar with the scientific work presently being conducted in the field of fusion and with the enormous technical and practical problems in the way of harnessing a hydrogen explosion say simply that this bunk. They say that only the first elementary theoretical steps have been taken and it is therefore not only highly vision ary but perhaps also a great disservice to speak as though this could happen overnight. It leads to all kinds of false hopes among underdeveloped peoples who want so desperately to believe in a kind of magic by which they can advance from the stage of the oxcart to the Problem of Temperature.

The essential problem is how temperatures equivalent to those in the interior of the sun can be contained in some form of engine which will give off energy that man can utilize. Metalurgists foresee no container which would not itself be vaported in an instant. This matter of a container or a shield remains one of the big problems in harnessing atomic fission for limited purposes such as power-limited purposes such as power-limited purposes.

Atomic fission, in the phase in which we have known it during the last 10 years, calls for raw materials dug out of the earth and purified and enriched at great cost. But if hydrogen, component of air and water, can produce a force infinitely greater, then man has within his grasp the secret of unlimited power.

So the optimists leap with a great wave of hope across the chasm from the theoretically potential to the here and now. What the practical men are say-

Glowing Visions.

That the optimists should leap over the difficult intervening stages is understandable in view of the glowing visions of a world the stage of the glowing visions of a world which congress of the atom has in this initial phase clear energy, but we always have opened up, and it is easy to see too why control of the hydrogen explosion should give these visions an even more immediate and rose color.

The hydrogen bomb is a much fiercer weapon and the prospect of taming it is correspondingly more attractive, though at the present time the method to be used is not at all clear.

The fission reaction, used in atomic piles and bombs, draws its energy from the breakup of rare heavy elements such as uranium and plutonium. The H-bomb furnace is fired by the melting together of fight elements such as hydrogen and lithium.

One speculation now buzzing around feerew suggests the use of powerful machines now being used for basic research in nuclear physics.

In contrast, the H-reaction uses the most abundant elements and, if it can be made to go at all, will be a good source of energy as long as the earth itself survives. For hydrogen is the commonest element in the universe.

Uranium splits up pretty easily, but hydrogen sticks towther only at temperatures of 2,000,000 degrees or more and continued on Page 7, Column 5.

Signal-Flag for a New Age?

President Eisenhower spoke the simple truth in his message to the atomic scientists at Geneva when he said: "No other scientific gathering of such scope and importance, or of such widespread interest, has ever taken place."

Only those who would judge by results can qualify these words. They can say that potentially the gathering is all-important. Scientists seem ready to sweep aside such reservations. But before being too disdainful they might recall the political controls of the last 10 years.

High optimism, however, seems to be dominant at Geneva. This is understandable. Conceived in war, atomic energy has until now been largely regarded as a military weapon and guarded as such. Some of the men who know most about it have long protested that this policy is essentially impossible. They have pointed out that natural facts are available regardless of nationality, and they also have argued that the peaceful potential of atomic energy is so much greater than its military applications that the latter should not be all-controlling.

In a measure, Geneva is a vindication of these men. For the first time not merely Britons and Americans are talking about atomic energy, but Russians and Americans also are talking about their respective achievements. In fact, scientists of 72 nations are participating in this first broad sharing of atomic knowledge.

The scientific method always has been one of co-operation, of shared knowledge. One bit of information might be discovered in an American laboratory, another in France, still another in Britain or Germany and perhaps yet another in Russia. By itself, each bit might be at most intriguing; but all put together might mean a very significant advance in man's knowledge. Even the giants of science, the men hailed as great discoverers, have been dependent on the accumulated knowledge in their field. Now the politicians of the world may be on the verge of sanctioning such freedom for the atom.

That is cause for optimism, but it should also engender at least a little humility. There should be at least a quick review of the policy of secrecy -as yet not completely abandoned. What is to be said when an American Atomic Energy Commission official inspects a Russian atomic power project and exclaims that "Russia has scooped us, and that's all there is to it?" The British also are well along in the atomic production of electricity. The United States has no more engine at West Milton, N.Y. No doubt, Americans can also show the Europeans a thing or two; but secrecy certainly has given us no overwhelming atomic monopoly.

Yet secrecy was honorably and prudently motivated. In spite of the doubts of scientists, those in Washington tried to insure the nation's security. And so long as this new source of energy is regarded primarily as a means of defense, the policy of security must be continued except where other nations clearly have caught up with us, or passed us, and secrecy is no longer of any avail.

If such a weapons-first policy prevails in one country, it will almost automatically prevail in all countries. It will mean that each nation fears ever more potent atomic weapons in another nation's arsenal, and no government will want to put such weapons in the hands of another.

Just here arises the real problem of Geneva: Have the nations at last come to the point where they realize that the peaceful applications of atomic knowledge so far transcend its military application that the latter must be given secondary consideration? Is there a real belief that the benefits of atomic energy may actually reduce the danger of war to the point where it need be given only such secondary consideration?

Or is the world at least developing a resigned conviction that it is so difficult to maintain an important advantage in scientific knowledge that nations might as well run the risk of shared knowledge for its peaceful advantages?

The magnitude of the possibilities was suggested by India's Dr. Homi J. Bhabha, president of the Geneva conference, when he predicted that hydrogen would become a source of power within two decades. Here is the virtually inexhaustible fuel. The H-bomb is proof enough that man is on the way to harnessing it. A world-wide co-operative effort undoubtedly would mean a relatively early discovery of the devices by which it can be brought into service.

Is there not yet enough prudent trust among nations? Will Geneva do little more than define the areas in which secrecy has become useless? Or will atomic Geneva tower over political Geneva? Will the current sharing at Geneva be prelude to world-wide co-operative effort? Will it bring a clear go-ahead to the scientists?

Will it, as it can, raise the signal-flag for a

Trail Blazer of the City

The life of Frank John Bruno is a reminder of how much the United States owes to its foreign-born-not sons or grandsons of immigrants but the foreign-born of this generation.

A native of Florence, Italy, brought to this country by his parents in 1876, he traveled by way of the ministry and the administration of charitable organizations to education of a new sort. This was the training of men and women to engage in urgently needed social work in the large cities. He came to Washington University in 1925 and almost from the day he arrived the university here became a pioneer in this important area of practical education.

Under Frank Bruno's leadership and direction the Washington University's George Warren Brown School of Social Work did much to open a field that attracted students from over the Meantime St. Louis profited in many ways from having him here as one of its most

From the Ground Up

Given the circumstances surrounding the St. Louis County Police Department's creation, the administrative and personnel problems that have cropped up probably were inevitable.

The administrative difficulties grow out of the fact that the department is being built from the ground up. Of necessity, this work has had to be done faster than was desirable. For one thing, the County Council did not approve a police budget until some eight days before the department was supposed to function. For another; the legal cloud over the force was removed only at the last minute. For still another, the question of a building to house police headquarters was left hanging for much longer than necessary.

If the administrative difficulties were inevitable, the personnel problems were even more so. grandfather clause in the Charter amendment creating it required it to take over personnel of the politics-ridden Sheriff's office. Hell and Maria Remembered

There was a Paul Revere's ride to Co the session drew to its close that should be noted even belatedly. Following an eminent example Senator Fulbright of Arkansas slipped away from the grind for a few holes of golf. But the $21,000,000 atomic energy display ship bill came up. An urgent phone call reached him just as he was getting ready to slash a long drive or putt for the cup or something else equally tense. He hurried back to Capitol Hill, arriving just before the crucial roll call which his colleagues had stalled off until he could get there to cast the deciding "No" vote, 42 to 41 This reminded us that two years ago Vice President Nixon was called on to break tie votes twice. And that in turn brought memories of the famous taxicab dash of Charles Gates Dawes to the Senate chamber just 30 years ago. And that was really something!

Back in 1925 Calvin Coolidge, then President ade up his mind that he was going to get his friend Charles Beecher Warren established as Attorney General. Appointing Mr. Warren and getting him confirmed, even by a Republican Senate, however, turned out to be two entirely different procedures.

Mr. Coolidge's Senate leaders brought up the Warren name without counting noses of Selators on hand. A quick check showed that the vote might wind up even. Posthaste a call was sen out for Vice President Dawes to have him in the presiding officer's chair to break a tie. But inquiry disclosed that he had gone to his room at the Mayflower Hotel to enjoy the luxury of a

By the time Mr. Dawes rushed into the chamber, the roll had been taken, Mr. Coolidge's appointee had not received enough votes and

Sound Road Vote From Missouri

Perhaps the major domestic issue on which Congress should have acted, and did not, was highway legislation. Most Americans want better highways, and consequently ought to know how their Representatives voted in the House, which killed both the Eisenhower, Administration bill and the Democratic substitute. This is how the

As a group, the Missouri delegation rejected the Administration plan to finance roads with special bonds issued outside the federal debt. They voted 8 to 3 for the substitute which would have put road-building on a pay-as-you-go basis, and this required political courage because it vas a vote for higher road taxes

Some of the individual votes were neither party-line nor predictable. For example, Morgan Moulder, Camdenton Democrat, voted for Republican Administration's bill and against his party's substitute.

Democrat, voted against both measures, while the veteran Galena Republican. Congressman Dewey Short, voted for both of them. The only unsurprising thing about this contrast is the con trast. Mrs. Sullivan rarely votes so totally in the negative, and Missouri is certainly unaccustomed to seeing Dewey Short stride blithely above and beyond party lines to accentuate the positive.

On the whole, the Missouri delegation voted for the best interests of sound highway planning and financing, and can be expected to do so when the issue arises again, as it must. The Missouri delegation's record stood out. We suspect it reflects the educational influence of Missouri's own non-political highway program, which also stands out among the states.

giant anteater looks a superbly stupid fellow, yet is he? A shambling, hairy creature about two feet high and four feet long, his head is practically nothing but a very long, tapering out. Two small, puzzled eyes and two rat-like ears are near the top of the head. A sticky snake-like tongue whips in and out of the other end and can lick up scores of ants at each flick.

The West Berlin Zoological Garden sent out two anteaters to clean up a rubble-strewn block that swarmed with ants. Spectators became disil lusioned as the anteaters registered complete indifference to the ant hordes. Just as a horse can be led to water but cannot be made to drink, so the anteaters could be led to the ants but could not be made to live up to their names. Zoo officials put their heads together and came up with an explanation: The anteaters' taste for their natural food had been destroyed by their regular Zoo diet of honey, egg yolks and ground beef.

That is one way of looking at it. But there is another way. If the anteaters had cleaned up on the ants they might very well have found them selves drafted to rid all West Berlin of ants. And that would have meant working for a living instead of lolling in comfortable quarters at the Zoo and dining on daily servings of honey, egg yolks and ground beef. No, the anteater is not as

If a Canadian comes to Delhi who seriously wants to try to learn something about India, there is one piece of advice I always give. It is, "Get out of the cities and towns and see at least one average Indian, village." average Indian village." I give this advice because over 80 per cent of the people of India live in its villages.

Poverty together with the disease and the illiteracy which accompany it are the enemies within the gates which India is fighting in its programs of eco-nomic and social development.

Thus one of the major economic prob-lems of India is that its population will go up about 50,000,000 in the next 10 A major social problem is ur years. should be destroyed. First Battles Have Been Won

The task before India is so stupe dous that to make a sizable impact on it will require the devoted labors of a whole generation of Indians. It is no wonder that Mr. Nehru has said that this generation of Indians has voluntar-ily condemned itself to a lifetime of

The first battles in the first campaign in independent India's war against poverty, disease and ignorance have on the whole been successful. It is genthe whole been successful. It is generally agreed that in the last four years agricultural production in India has gone up nearly 20 per cent and industrial production by some 30 per cent; while population has gone up by less than 6 per cent. Most of the increase in agricultural production is the result of good monsoons but some of the increase results from improvements in methods of production.

material to the dams and rubble out.

I thought then of the miracle of Colombo Plan aid. We gave the Indian Government $15,000,000 worth of wheat.
The Indian Government sold the wheat to Indian consumers. With the rupees it got for the wheat it paid Santal villagers and masonry workers from Madras and engineers from Calcutta to build the Mayurakshi dam. When the dam is finished it will irrigate 600,000 acres of land and increase the rice crops on this land by hundreds of thousands of tons a year. sands of tons a year

Peasants Have to Be Shown

This is the magical process by which Canadian wheat is turned into Indian rice. The increased yield of foodstuffs as a result of irrigation from Mayurakas a result of irrigation from Mayurak-shi will be so great that each grain of wheat we gave India will every two or three years produce a grain of rice. Most important of all, I have seen signs in some of the community projects I've visited that the first positions are being carried in a frontal attack on inefficient agricultural methods. The on inefficient agricultural methods. The peasant is a tough customer. He has to be shown. He won't believe what is written in pamphlets or what an agricultural expert tells him. But it is a different thing if he sees with his own eyes on the field of a neighbor that a new seed produces higger cross. new seed produces bigger crops.

Everything depends on the people in charge of the project—the director, his immediate assistants, and most important of all, the man at the bottom of the pyramid—the man who is in charge of all the activities of the project in five or 10 villages. This is the man who has been given the not very euphonious title, "all purpose village level worker." If India's program for reforming its villages is to succeed. India must have ages is to succeed. India must have level workers. They have to he re-cruited, trained and kept to the mark.

Confidence vs. Hopelessness

The wonder is not that mistakes have the wonder is not that as much has been accomplished against such odds. I have myself seen how valleys have become lakes, how land that was brown has become green, how what was jungle has become a modern industrial town.

Mr Nehru loves to travel about India Mr. Nenru loves to travel about India and see the progress that is being made. He finds it exciting to visit the new projects. Indeed I once heard him say in a public speech that he lives in a state of continuous excitement.

Mr. Nehru understands the profound Mr. Nehru understands the protound truth about economic development in an under-developed country such as India, that economic advance is not only good in itself, it is good because it gives the people of India more confidence in themselves and in their country.

The more confidence they have, the easier it is for them to withstand the divisive forces of regionalism, language, religion and caste, and the corrosive forces of under-employment, sickness, hunger and hopelessness.

A Piquant Failure THE LION'S SKIN, by Darwin Tellhet. (Sloane Associates, 346 pgs., $3.95.)

Americans, with an ample supply of Americans, with an ample supply of historical successes, often overlook the failures. "The Lion's Skin' is a novel about one of these failures—the personal attempt of Gen. William Walker to conquer Nicaragua in the 1850s. Walker is the figure who wears the lion's skin, patched out by bits of fox, as a Spanish proverb goes. His motives, which initially seem to be those of an Andrew Jackson, finally show the marks of an Aaron Burr.

of an Aaron Burr.
In this historical novel of revolution, Darwin Teilhet tells his story through the first-person narration of John Sanderson, a prospector, who stumbles into Walker's band of American troops when his luck runs out. The technique allows us to shift gradually our assessment of the general. His different facets of personality are revealed to us through the sonality are revealed to us through the successively disillusioning experiences of the well-intenescapades is historically accurate. Certainly the portrait of Sanderson is accurate for a hero in a novel of this genre, for he wins a girl and fortune, loses same, and in the final fifty pages, regains both. The writing is in good taste. The author has somewhat ambitiously stated. 'I have tried to write a biography of several years in the life of a country." He has not succeeded in this impossible aim, although he demonstrates a good sense of atmosphere. More important, Teilhet has written an historical novel that will hold the interest of summer readers by telling a familiar kind of story with a complex and piquant group of characters.

Spoilsmen in Our Forests

OUR NATIONAL FORESTS, by Bernard Frank. (Unf-versity of Oklahoma Press, $4.)

Our 148 national forests are visited by some 35 million people a year in search of beauty and quiet and a desire to be close to nature. But there are others who have different designs on these parks—loggers, miners, stockmen and merchants of hotdogs and hamburgers. As Justice Douglas once said, our national forests cannot be taken for granted, but must be actively preserved against all threats, even the most beguiling. In this book the author, a member of the United States Forest Service, surveys our national forests, and in the process gives a realistic picture of what is happening to our topsoil and subterranean water tables. He also cites glaring examples of wilderness abuse by private commercialization. Our 148 national forests are visited

CHICAGO, Aug. 9.

FOUR former professional football coaches have been placed in charge of the college All-Stars this year in an attempt to regain at least part of the spotlight from the Kilgore Rangerettes.

This switch from college mentors to the pro group is in the nature of a naked reverse from the old adage. If you can't beat 'em, join 'em. Only in this case the motto reads: If you can' beat 'em, hire 'em! That's what the late Arch Ward, who founded this mid-summer spectacle, accepted after what Detroit did yo the collegians one year ago.

after what Detroit did to the collegians one year ago.
Organization is the watchword of the pros. They operate as a unit in which individual stardom is secondary to team endeavors. The champion Lions proved that in the 1954 game when Bobby Layne, their name quarterback, didn't even get off the bench in a 31-6 victory.

They were up against the most redoubtable line in pro ball against which even the finest of the nation's cash-and-carry backs were incapable of making headway.

BOSTON, Aug. 9 (UP)-Manager Mike Higgins finally agreed today that the chances of the Boston Red Sox of winning the Boston Red Sox of winning the pennant "are as good as anyone's" but he admitted "a lot depends on the remaining games with the New York Yankees."

The fourth-place Red Sox and the Yankees, tied with the Chicago White Sox for the lead in the tense American League flag race, open an important threegame series in New York tonight. Boston was 1½ games from the lead as it prepped for the Yankee meetings and a game behind the third-place Cleveland Indians.

Though he concedes the importance of the 12 remaining contests with the Yanks, Higgins refuses to become overly excited about the upcoming three games. Of course, the Bosox pilot rarely does display such emotions but for him to make such optimistic comments on his team's chances in the pennant light would amount to an outright victory prediction by anyone else.

"What we do, I think, depends a lot on what happens in the 12 games left against the Yankees but it means a lot to them, too," Higgins said.

out details of President Eisenhower's proposed nation-wide physical fitness program.

The President called leading sports figures to the White House last month and urged steps toward promoting more participation in sports and recreation by the youth of America. While emphasis was put on physical fitness, juvenile delinquency and other questions figure in the program.

Several meetings have been held since the first gathering. Suggestions made at yesterday's session were not disclosed but Nixon said in advance that they would be forwarded to Mr. Eisenhower, who is spending the week at his Gettysburg (Pa.) farm before leaving for a Colorado vacation.

Nixon said earlier discussions showed three major problems:

Lack of facilities in cities and states for recreation; lack of instructors and of funds to pay them; and the necessity of impressing families and schools with the need for a more adequate physical education program.

Yesterday's guest list included such federal officials as Dr. "Conard Scheele, Surgeon Gen-yal; Dr. Samuel M. Brownell," Also attending were John B. NEW YORK, Aug. 9 (UP)—Qu.k, now! If you had to pick a most valuable player on the runawy Brooklyn Dodgers, would it be Duke Snider, Don Newcombe r Roy Campanella?

Baseball writers entrusted with making this year's M.V.P. awards will be confronted with three such standout candidates on the almost-certain pennantwinning club, some baseball men feel the Brooklyn votes may be split and that an "outsider" will win the award.

It happened last season with the Cleveland Indians. The midwest voting delegation could not decide upon Bob Lemon, Bobby Avila or Larry Doby, and Soly Berra of the New York Yankees won the honor for the second time in his career.

SELLING WAVE SETS STOCK INDEX BACK SHARPLY

Big Names Hit Hardest - Heavy Losses Not Universal - Late Rally in Aircrafts.

NEW YORK, Aug. 9 (AP)-The stock market fell hard today under the pressure of a mid-day selling wave.

Weakness in Chrysler and General Motors started the selling that spread through the entire market during the third hour.

In the final hour, aircrafts rallied smartly and closed higher, but that strength had only a partial reflection in the rest of the market which recovered a little from the lows.

Losses ran from 1 to around 5 points. Advances were small with the exception of aircrafts where gains went to between 1 and 3 points.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dropped $2. The fall is a heavy one for the average, although it has been exceeded several times this year. It was off $2.40 last Thursday. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks closed down 2 full the state of the second several times this year.

London stocks added 3 points today to the 5.7 points gained yesterday, making the Financial Immes index 207.6 at the close.

Top 2 Weeks Ago.

The market hit a record high level two weeks ago yesterday, and since then it has been headed downward in a reaction. Many traders and others in recent sessions took to the side-lines to wait a sign whether the market intended to sell off sharply or whether it might attempt to go through a quiet consolidation stage without a steep reaction. Consequently, when prices began to sag today, there was little hesitancy about offer-was little hesitance was l

Former King Zog of Albania and one of his sisters boarding the French liner Marshal Joffre at Alexandria to sail for France. Zog, whose former kingdom in the Balkans now is a Communist satellite state, had been living in Egypt, but decided to move to France to continue his exile. Zog was driven from his throne in 1939 when Mussolini's Italian forces seized Albania. He never got a chance to return, because Communists took control at the end of World War II.

Last Building Demolished on New Park Site

Photograph made from roof of Kiel Auditorium shows nearly completed work of clearing three blocks for a park to link Aloe and Memorial Plazas. Debris in foreground marks demolition of Model Hotel on the northwest corner of Market and Fifteenth streets. This was the last building to be torn down. The park, bounded by Market, Cheştnut, Fifteenth and Eighteenth streets, is being financed by a $1,500,000 bond issue as part of the over-all project for redevelopment of the Plaza area. Five and one-half blocks immediately north of the park site are being cleared for a private housing project. When the last remaining buildings, a group on Pine street between Fourteenth and Fifteenth, are torn down, the housing site will be advertised for sale to a redeveloper who will erect approximately 1150 air-conditioned apartments for middle-income tenants.

Notes On Planting

A FRIEND of ours is in the process of trying to decide whether to cut down a tree in his yard or continue to pay out a good deal of hard cash each year to have the roots of said tree cut out of his sewer line. Seems that whoever planted the tree planted it too close to the sewer line.

Now we are all in favor of growing things, especially around the house but you've got to be careful about where they grow. Trees, too close to the house for example care and grow. Trees, too close to the house, for example, can send roots down that will damage of leaks. They'll also tear up walks and drives if there is a source of water close to the surface.

AND IT'S NOT ONLY THE BIG TREES that are the cause of trouble. Foundation plans around the house should never be set too close to the house siding for they will provide a nice way for wood boring insects to reach the house woodwork. It's a good idea to keep shrubs and bushes at least 18 inches from the house.

Another good reason to keep plants away from the woodwork is that after a rain, the leaves will retain moisture for several hours and this dampness can and does often get into the wood to cause decay and blistering and

The school has the children for at most five hours in the day. Home and society have them the remainder of the twenty-four hours. The weight of influence then is on home and society. Let us see how it is used.

Books tell of the wonders of the world; of the wonderful things brave men and women have done to make this world a place of joy; books are filled with the wisdom of the race brought down through the years to endow each generation with the treasures unearthed in days gone by. Good books are wellsprings of truth, wisdom, beauty and deep pleasure for the spirit, say the schools.

And what do home and society say about that? They buy comics, those misnamed carriers of vulgarity and worse. They look the other way when the children turn on TV programs that highlight murder, ones that send thrills of horror down one's spine. "Well, they seem to enjoy them so much. After all, they'll outgrow them soon." Maybe. But—.

ACK WEBB has taken a vacation from his gold mine, Sgt. Joe Friday, just long enough to turn out a pretty interesting atmospheric jazz musical, "PETE KELLY'S BLUES," which opened yesterday at the FOX THEATER with Mr. Webb, a man with a keen eye for commercial exploitation, kicking it off 67 A with two stage appearances The picture is centered in a sleazy speakeasy in Kansas City in 1927 where Pete Kelly, cornetist, leads a discouraged seven-man combo, and is complete with cheap racketeers, watered hooch, jazz babies in atrocious cloche hats and dresses with the waist line at the thighs, Dixieland and gun play, so it certainly includes all the gaudier aspects of the time. But it also captures well a blues mood-a primitive, hectic, cheaply gaudy way of life with a moaning underbeat. Jack's Pete Kelly is as sad-eyed as a Missouri hound dog. Pete seems to be used to a pushing-around, loudmouthed customers, chintzy speak proprietors, and hoods muscling in for a bite of the impoverished musicians' take. Even the caresses of Janet Leigh as a hot "it" number with money than sense, and the murder of his drummer don't arouse him from his depression at first, but he gets pushed too far, shoves a gat in his belt and shoots it out with the gangsters in an abandoned dance hall Mr. Webb underplays in his usual terse, cryptic style, but in directing this (he also is the producer) he has allowed his other characters to be fairly normal in unleashing their emotions. Edmond O'Brien makes a good overfed, flashy racketeer, and Peggy Lee a drab whisky-guzzling moll. The jazz is good, with Ella Fitzgerald contributing a couple of songs. Richard L. Breen's screenplay has some bite to its dialogue. In doing this in CinemaScope, Webb has used repressed color to help the mood, and has employed very few of the alternating closeups that are characteristic of

*ASK HOPE ANYTHING," said Blair generously. "Mr. Hope," I said, "May I have your autograph? Maybe a thousand times. Or else I shall be hated forever." Hope sighed and began signing his name swiftly and I sat down with his personal press agent, Mack Millar. "Did I ever tell you how I got with Hope?" said Millar. "Tell," I said.

"I was a press agent on Broadway during the 'Twenties, the speakeasy days," he said. "Now you know most of the big clubs and speaks were owned by the mobs. So in a way I worked for them. Dutch Schultz, Legs Diamond, Owney Madden, all those guys. I was just a kid but making more money than I ever saw before.

"Well, one of the mob, worked for Dutch Schultz, took a liking to me. Used to call me up and say, 'Kid, let's go over to the Polo Grounds and see the game.'

"I'd try to duck it. 'I gotta stay with my little boy on Sunday,' I'd say. 'I don't ever see him.' 'Bring him along,' the guy would say.

'So there we'd be in a bullet-proof car, me pushing the kid's head down for fear somebody would open up on us with the sawed-offs."

MILLAR SAID THE TOPPER of this situation came when a mobster called on him one day with orders to report to a Jersey hospital.

"'The boss has been shot,' he told me. 'He likes you and he wants some of your blood.'

'Blood?' I said. 'How much blood?'

The mobster looked over Millar, assessing his gallonage. "About half a case, I guess," he said. "Say six fifths."
"That was enough for me," said Mack. "I went away as far as I could. To Hollywood. And I've been there ever Millar said he feared that if he stayed he might have to make a career out of refilling bleeding gangsters. Fortunately he pulled out before Dutch Schultz was fatally ven-

You may remember that the Dutchman passed on remarking in puzzling and poetic delirium:

"A boy has never wept or dashed a thousand krim." I asked Millar if, out of his acquaintance, he could throw light on this statement.

"More than likely about beer," said Millar. "The Dutchman had a one-track mind."

A CAMERAMAN CAME OUT and said Bob Hope was shaving and maybe a picture of Hope in soap would be good publicity. On second thought, he gathered up Miss California of 1955 and took her along.

Hope paused with the razor long enough to veto this. "No pictures in the bathroom," he said. "What do you

Millar winced slightly. Blair shooed off the cameramen. He said launching a picture was a sure-fire way to get ulcers. "Hollywood," groaned Blair. "Double Dubuque. The Yappian Way."

But a long, long way from Broadway," said Millar thankfully.

Hope dried his famous face and went down to open "The Seven Little Foys" and all the guests refilled their glasses and reached for the expensive hors d'oeuvre.

All Fagged Out

By Dr. Paul Popence

ANY a homemaker is fagged out before the day is half over, and drags through the remaining hours with no satisfaction to herself or her family. That is the situation of Mrs. C., who describes it thus: "I do all my own work, but so do most of the women in the world, suppose. I have a small home, two children, and a patient husband, but I'm always so tired that I'm not doing justice to anybody. My physician says there is nothing wrong with me but there is plenty wrong, Dr. Popenoe!"

Most of my women readers will understand perfectly, Mrs. C. Part of your difficulty may be due to boredom, which calls for better planning to get more leisure time for more fun.

But systematic relaxation will help also. ₩OMEN WHO TRY to lie down for a while in the n sometimes complain that it does them no good. Very likely they're right. An interesting study made in Cleveland of four groups of young mothers, showed that those who merely tried to lie down and rest for 15 minutes each day could see little benefit of it. Those who were taught to relax systematically gave a very different report. "They are less tired and tense, their dispositions and family relations have improved, they feel better, sleep better, and can see a change for the better in their figures. They are less cranky with the children, ready to smile when their husbands come home, and able to enjoy going out in the evening." How does that sound

ANY PUBLIC LIBRARY should be able to furnish you with one of the standard books on how to relax. Get it and practice. It's really not too difficult, but it requires time. You'll find it hard to relax all over; most techniques advise you to concentrate on one limb at a time.

Psychologist Dorothy H. Yates has popularized the implest method. With this, you pick out some word that is a cue to the way you want to feel: peace, quiet, rest, or whatever you like. When you go to bed at night, relax as much as you can and say this word over and over to yourself. After a while you'll find that you can relax in the daytime merely by dropping down and repeating this word in your mind.

But you can make your own figure look prettier and more curvy with good posture and an easy corrective exercise or two. Ready to begin? Repeat them every day! Avoid putting out the fire in a fireplace or outdoor barbecue with water because if the masonry is hot, steam is going to be generated when the water hits and this steam can do a lot of dwarfs.

By Ed Reed

For correct posture, stand (with shoes off) with your back against the wall... knees bent a little and the full length of your spine touching the wall; arms at your sides. Straighten your knees slowly, keeping your back still against the wall. Get the feel of this straight-backed posture and practice keeping it when you walk away from the wall. Tummy in, hips under, head up. head up.

For fuller bustline contours, this exercise helps to firm the chest muscles and improve your chest muscles and improve your figure: Stand erect, elbows bent, hands at shoulders with fists clenched. Keeping both fists toching your shoulders ro-tate your elbows in a wide cir-cle, first forward, then out to the sides as fast as possible; then back and finally down at your sides again. Make wide backward circles with your el-bows 10 times, gradually in-creasing the number, day by day.

Repeat these exercises every morning and night until the good posture that they help to give you becomes a habit . . . that you remember always.

Note that in this case the ruse Note that in this case the ruse was highly successful in that it virtually immobilized East. The latter was also quite alive to the possibility that North's spade bid had been phony, but it is one thing to suspect and a far different thing to know. East certainly could not act on the first round, over one spade, and when his second chance came, it was not very comfortable to bid three spades over two not trunn (one finally four spades). trump (nor, finally, four spades over four hearts). Thus, Eastover four hearts). Thus, East-West lost the chance to land at a four spade contract that could have been made by careful play against the normal heart lead. Even worse, however, was in store for East-West. The open-ing lead against the heart con-

This should have given East the count on the diamonds. mond suit and induced a quick shift to spades, but East made the highly unimaginative return of his last diamond. (Surely, he should have realized that dummy's club suit was menacing and that it might be a very good idea to knock out the spade ace and simultaneously set up a spade trick, if possible.) The upshot was that South took out the trumps and then guessed the club situation, cashing the ace and finesting up to dumm's 10. and finessing up to dummy's thus salvaging his spade loser.

Y HUSBAND travels a great deal and one of his prin-M Y HUSBAND travels a great deal and only eight stops is in a town where we used to live. He has been in the habit of visiting two sisters, friends of the family, and every time he gets to that town, which is pretty often, he heads right for their house. He keeps talking about their wonderful meals and how nice they are and I'm a little fed up. Am I just being the jealous wife? WORRIED.

Yes, period. Why begrudge him a home-cooked meal and a friendly visit with home town folks? You should be thankful that they're so nice to him.

Maybe if he kept writing home about the town's good-looking widow, you'd have cause for alarm, but I think you're looking for trouble in suspecting a good deed.

I WAS GOING with a boy 22 years old, and I was in love with him until I found out that he was dating another girl. He had been talking to me about getting married and said he loved me. When I found out about him, I broke up with him. Three weeks later, he called and begged me to go out with him. I decided I would and he told me again he loved me and I believed him again. Everything was fine for a little while, but then I found out again that he was still dating this other girl. I don't know what to do, Martha, give him up or fight for him. He's a wonderful UNHAPPY. boy and I hate to lose him.

Wonderful, you say? What's so wonderful about not knowing whether he's telling you the truth or not? You'd be better off without someone who tells one girl he wants to marry her while he's dating someone else.

WHAT CAN YOU DO when your husband just refuses to go out, and prefers to sit at home all the time? People invite us for dinner or a show and he says he'd rather stay home, that he isn't particularly interested in being with others. It's embarrassing for me as I don't want to appear that I don't like people, and anyway I think couples should get out with friends occasionally, don't you?

I certainly do. Some overdo it, I'll admit, by being on the run constantly and never taking time out for a quiet evening at home with the family. But the other extreme is almost as bad. However, you can't force him to go out so my suggestion is to accept his anti-social attitude with what grace you can muster and plan to be with your friends for luncheon or at afternoon parties where the husbands

Staying Young

I AM SURE THAT YOU ALREADY KNOW of the wonderful work the Girl Scouts have been doing for more than 40 years. Today, more and more local Girl Scout councils in large cities and small ones are employing paid executives to work with adult volunteers in carrying out the Scout program. A requirement for this job is a bachelor of arts degree. It offers a wonderful opportunity for the business woman who would like to change her job, the teacher or social worker who decides that she would like to work in a new, correlated field, a new college graduate, or a housewife whose children are grown.

What more heart-warming work than to give a hand to young people as they mature! A woman of any age who has enthusiasm and likes people, may find that working with youth will help preserve her own

My brother-in-law resents this very much and says that a child has no business asking who is calling. She only asks when she doesn't recognize the voice and does it in a polite manner. Will you please tell me if I am wrong in having

A Potato on Your Diet Menu

Maine Comes to the Rescue of Its Own Product

By Olga Curtis

NEW YORK, Aug. 8 (INS). GIVING up potatoes so you can get into your girdle?
You don't have to,

Potatoes, ma'am, are low-calorie foods, and you can actually diet with potatoes instead of without them. . . So says no less an authority than the state of Maine, which is considerably interested in potatoes because it raises so many of them.

About a year ago, this reporter asked the Maine potato experts if a gal really had to forego the fluffy mashed or the tasty potato salad when she wanted to take off poundage. The Maine potato committee obligingly went to work and came up with the research-packed, calorie-countered answer.

"YOU DON'T HAVE TO GIVE UP potatoes when you diet. In fact, you're liable to diet more easily if you keep potatoes on your menu."

The reason is simple. Potatoes are an energy food and a little of them can prevent "dieter's droop." Just how little? Well, a medium-sized potato contains about 100 calories.

Compare that with a glass of milk, which has 170 calories.

A mashed potato, prepared according to a recipe worked out by the state of Maine, will have only 105 calories. Potato salad made by another special recipe will have only 110 calories per

FRIED POTATOES ARE OUT.

The frying makes them ineligible.
However, you can try boiled and broiled potatoes (100 calories) or baked (130).
Here are the recipes worked out by Maine for reducers who want to keep potatoes on the menu:

until tender. Drain, saving potato water. Peel potato and put through ricer or masher. Return to pot and shake over burner to heat, taking care not to scorch. Sprinkle with one teaspoon non-fat dry milk solid, and add enough potato water.

Maine potato experts also Prepare special dressing first, using one-half cup skimmed milk, juice of one lemon, one teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon garlic powder.

Combine ingredients thoroughly and put in refrigerator for at least half an hour while salad have a tip for folks who like

Words, Wit And Wisdom By William Morris

This department has voiced, on one or two occasions lately, a small word of protest against the banal, repetitious advertising plugs which occupy so much radio and television time these days. Special mention was made of the technique of "irritation" which consists of repeating the same phrase over and over again on the theory that, like Pavlov's dog, the listener will respond by reflex action next time he or dog, the listener will respond by reflex action next time he or she sees the brand name in a local store. Naturally the advertiser assumes that the reaction will take the form of a purchase of his product by the thoroughly indoctrinated listeners.

Well, I've got news for the advertising agency boys who specialize in this irritation technique. Of the many letters from readers commenting on my earlier articles, not a single one has had a kind word for this type of advertising. Here is a type of advertising. Here is a typical note from Mrs, W. Musgrove of Rialto, Calif.

T CERTAINLY WAS GLAD "I CERTAINLY WAS GLAD TO SEE YOU bring out some comments on this 'irritation' technique so many advertisers use. I have been somewhat amused by some advertising but simply disgusted with the rest. "One particular TV advertising slide makes me shiver. It concerns a brand of popcorn and is rather cleverly set to a bop' theme. But to hear it repeated three times, on a 15-bop' theme. But to hear it repeated three times on a 15-minute program!!!

"Surely many housewives feel as I do. Their intelligence is being insulted by repetitious and cloying phrases such as:
"XXXX detergent makes dishwashing almost nice!"

"I CAN'T HELP REMEMBERING THESE WORDS that are hurled at me day and night. I recognize the products at the grocery store—but I don't buy them!" If I were in the advertising business, I should enlarge and frame the last sentence of Mrs. Musgrove's letter. Then I'd hang it where every copywriter, account executive and client would have to read it.

The Home Permanent

THERE are many women and girls—and some extremely chic ones—who like to give themselves permanents. Beauty salons do take both time and money; and since many women are budgeted in one or both, maybe there's a reason for over maybe there's a reason for over $400,000,000 worth of hair preparations for use in the home being sold.

If you do plan a home waving If you do plan a home waving session, set aside plenty of time when you won't have any interruptions. Have a friend help you with it. Don't cheat or change any details—even if you think you know best. ALL DIRECTIONS have been scientifically worked out. Be meticulous about following all instructions in your kit. Other-wise it will be a botched-up

Perhaps you want to try one of the newer and quicker types that require only a set with bob-by pins. If so, here's a tip for its success. Make the pin curls about the size of a dime-smaller and tighter than you ordinarily do when you set your hair each night.

WITH ANY TYPE, the ends of your last permanent must be trimmed before the new one is given. If you're going to wear a new style, the hair should be shaped to conform to the new line prior to the wave. And, if your hair is heavy, have it thinned beforehand, because a permanent doubles the body of the hair. Post-permanent care will contribute much to the beauty of your wave. A careful first set and regular resets attunes waves and curls to submissiveness.

Brushing improves and "natural-izes" the curl. A bit of pomade or your special hair cream ap-plied to ends keeps them soft and adds a gleam to your newly waved coiffure.

CERTAIN insects deserve more fame than they have been given. They are enemies of locusts, and could be employed more widely to cut down the danger of locust plagues.

These insects are blister beetles. Their strange name arose from the fact that a substance in their bodies will raise a blister if it touches the human

Some kinds of blister beetles get to be only half an inch long. Others reach a length of a full inch. They are colored brightly, some being blue, others green and still others blue-green. One type has a golden coloring.

A female blister beetle lays eggs in an area where locusts have been common. The eggs hatch, and small wormlike larvae hatch, and small wormlike larvae walk or crawl over the ground. If they are fortunate, they discover a batch of locust eggs, and start to eat them. The eating goes on slowly, but many larvae can destroy a vast number of locust eggs.

Another kind of blister beetle
